LINCOLN

William Cullen Bryant's Ode For the Martyred President's Obsequies Read in New York, April 25, 1865.

Oh, slow to smite and swift to spare,
Gentle and merciful and just,
Who, in the fear of God, didst bear
The sword of power, a nation's trust.

In sorrow by thy bier we stand,
Amid the awe that hushes all,
And speak the anguish of a land
That shook with horror at thy fall.

Thy task is done; the bond are free.
We bear thee to an honored grave,
Whose proudest monument shall be
The broken fetters of a slave.

Pure was thy life; its bloody close
Hath placed thee with the sons of light,
Among the noble host of those
Who perished in the cause of Right.

STREAMS LOW AND CLEAR FOR EARLY FISHING NEXT WEEK SAYS CHAMBERS

Lovers of the rod and reel who desire to take advantage of the six weeks open season on trout, beginning February 15th, may have to get to the streams on snowshoes, but after they once get to them, the speckled beauties will be there in plenty, is the declaration of Fred W. Chambers, state fish and game commissioner. Hundreds of inquiries have been made in the last few days by sportsmen concerning the prospects for the early opening, says the fish and game commissioner, so the outlook is for lots of fishermen to brave the snows of the canyons next Tuesday.

Further evidence that the early opening will bring forth a young army of rod wielders is the demand throughout the state for licenses to fish and hunt. While the state commissioner's office could not make any check on the number sold, Commissioner Chambers said it was safe to say that between four and five thousand licenses had been issued during January and the report is that a heavy demand is still being made for them in all cities.

That the streams will be normal, clear and the trout in abundance, is the assurance of Chambers to the sportsmen. He says that it will be extremely hard to get to the best fishing grounds, but once there, big catches should be made. The heavy snow will make it a perilous undertaking to get to some of the streams, but he declares it will be no trouble to wade them once they are reached.

Reports have reached the fish and game offices that all streams are low and that there is little danger of a sudden thaw reaching the canyons before February 15th, or two weeks from then, in time to make any material change in the condition of the streams. The fish will be hungry for the sight of a fly and dexterous fishermen ought not to have much trouble getting big catches. Scarcely any of the streams most likely to be sought by the sportsmen are frozen over.

Commissioner Chambers predicts that the streams in the two Cottonwood Canyons, Mill Creek, Weber, Provo and Ogden Canyons will be the attraction for sportsmen. These streams, he points out, will be more easily accessible, will not be frozen and are low and clear. He also believes that many of the streams of the low valleys will be lined with fishermen for the early opening and many fish are reported to be in them.

Most of the lakes made famous by trout fishing are frozen over and are so high up in the canyons that it will be next to impossible to get to them before late in the spring, or after the open season in June. Commissioner Chambers says that the heavy snow and unusually cold weather throughout the state has not destroyed any wild game. All game found to be in distress has been fed by the department.

The ducks of Juab county, driven from the frozen lakes, were fed for three or four days by the game department and have now left the warm springs where they had gathered in thousands and have scattered throughout the state. No deer have been reported lost from heavy snow or starvation.

QUAIL BEING CARED FOR WHILE SNOW BURIES FOOD

Stories about quail starving in Washington county are denied in a letter received by F. W. Chambers, state fish and game commissioner, says the Deseret News. The letter was from B. C. Farnsworth, a license agent at St. George. He says that the quail are in no danger and there has been no loss.

The quail in Carbon county have not fared so well, there being about four feet of snow on the level and it having been necessary to feed the birds during the recent severe storm period. This information was received from Abe Powell of Price, in order to save the quail it has often been necessary, according to Powell, to take the birds from beneath brush where they had taken refuge from the storm. They are in flocks of from twelve to twenty-five. Powell says the loss will be rather heavy in Carbon county.

GEORGE WHITMORE ESPouses THE CHIROPRACTORS' CAUSE

That the next legislature will take action favorable to the chiropractors of Utah is the belief of George C. Whitmore of Nephi. Whitmore has called on Attorney General A. R. Barnes in the interest of the chiropractors.

He wanted to know if there is not some way in which the chiropractors can be permitted to practice until the next session of the legislature. The attorney general told him he knew of none in view of the recent decision of the supreme court.

Whitmore declares that it is manifestly unfair to drive the chiropractors out of the state, asserting that they are doing a good work.

"My life was saved by chiropractors," said he. "Doctors had given me up, when I turned my attention to chiropractic."

HAPPENINGS MORE OR LESS NEWSY OVER IN THE KINGDOM OF EMERY

CASTLE DALE, Feb. 5.—Mrs. McFarlane of Cleveland, one of our old and respected citizens, who had been a constant sufferer for many months, was called to her final rest last Sunday night. She leaves two daughters, Mrs. Joseph Potter and Miss Sophia McFarlane, besides Mrs. Pratt, Alfred and Parlan and William McFarlane, step children, all of whom reside there.

Alex McFugin of Cleveland, who had been a sufferer for some time, passed quietly away last Tuesday evening. He leaves a wife and a nephew who has made his home with them for some time. The funeral services over the remains of Mrs. McFarlane and Mr. McFugin were held conjointly on Thursday and in spite of the stormy weather, a very large crowd was in attendance, which spoke of the high esteem in which they were held.

Mrs. Moroni Oreson, who has been visiting with her parents at Ferron for some time, has returned to Cleveland. Her mother, Mrs. Nathaniel Crawford, has been visiting with her for a few days.

The local lifting barn, a structure of limited stannum, went down under the weight of snow last Thursday at midnight.

Quite a number of relatives and friends of Joseph Lund celebrated his sixty-first birthday in great shape last Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Baker are now coily located in the William J. Rudy residence, where Baker will be nearer his store.

Good work in Straight Canyon has been discontinued temporarily on account of the heavy snow.

Frederick Goddard, instructor of science in the Huntington high school, was granted a temporary high school certificate by the state board of education this week.

A Salt Lake daily this week announced a decision in favor of Leroy Lunderson of Emery in a contest on a land filing south of Emery.

Miss Hannah Larsen, who returned recently from an extended visit in Sanpete county, has been confined to her room with an attack of rheumatism the past ten days.

Those fortunate enough to have sleighs are enjoying this mode of travel now, but others don't find it so easy.

Dr. and Mrs. Graham were called East several weeks ago by the serious illness of Mrs. Graham's father, who died after their arrival there, according to a later report.

The lack of a physician in the south end of the county for several weeks has proved to be a trying problem for Dr. T. C. Hill, the Huntington practitioner. Dr. Hill has taken care of the wants of the people in the north end of the county in an able manner for the past four or five years, but it is only of late that he has been compelled to cover the south and central territory.

Deft Fencok of Orangetown started into the confectionery business at Orangetown a few weeks ago, and has enjoyed such good patronage in the interim, as to encourage him with some others to go into the general merchandise and confectionery business.
